

Mentoring sessions with Keiron Pim

Three session package

Session one – After submitting in advance a short (maximum 250-word) summary of your project and what you hope to achieve from mentoring, an initial hour of discussion about your short- and long-term writing goals and how you intend to achieve them. Bring a print-out of a 5,000-word extract from your work for your mentor to take away and review (numbered pages, 1.5 or 2 spaced).

Session two – A 90-minute feedback session with detailed comments, suggestions and advice on your work.

Session three – A final hour's mentoring to discuss next steps for your writing.

Five session package

Session one – After submitting in advance a short (maximum 250-word) summary of your project and what you hope to achieve from mentoring, an initial hour of discussion about your short- and long-term writing goals and how you intend to achieve them. Bring a print-out of a 5,000-word extract from your work for your mentor to take away and review (numbered pages, 1.5 or 2 spaced).

Session two – A 90-minute feedback session with detailed comments, suggestions and advice on your work.

Session three – A further hour of mentoring to discuss your writing life, issues and development. Bring more work for your mentor to take away and comment on. This can be new work and/or revised work following previous feedback.

Session four – A 90-minute feedback session with detailed comments, suggestions and advice on your work.

Session five – A final hour's mentoring to discuss next steps for your writing.

Seven session package

The seven session package is as above but with a further round of work submitted and mentoring follow-up.
